KAISER WINS BY WAR THREAT

FRANCE FORCED TO YIELD ON THE MOROCCAN QUESTION.

Germany Consents to Negotiations to Fix Details France Hopes England Will Not Object-France Considers Alliance With Russia Practically Ended.

From THE SUN Correspondent at Paris Paris, June 19 .- The indications are that Germany may succeed in virtually subjugating France without firing a shot. The Kaiser has completely succeeded in convincing the French authorities that their choice lay solely between war and submission to the German demands. France then yielded in principle on the Moroccan question, although no details have yet been arranged.

The war panic which prevailed here for three or four days is now subsiding. This is only partly due to the concessions made. There is also reviving confidence in the French defensive resources, which may lead the country to take a firmer stand when fresh demands are made, as they

It may now be confidently expected that Germany will pursue vigorously her more serious purpose, the destruction of the Anglo-French entente. How this will be met will be the final test of French independence and of France's prestige as a great

Meantime, it may be said incidentally that the Franco-Russian alliance has practically come to an end. France realizes that Russia cannot perform any of her duties under the alliance and she will cease henceforth to regard it as a political asset.

Paris. June 19.-Germany will now negotiate the Morocoo question with France. The French Government has indicated its willingness to meet the German demands in a most conciliatory spirit. An international conference may or may not follow, but if it does it will be on lines previously agreed upon by Germany and France and will not open the whole question of the destiny of Morocco, as the Sultan has expected it to do.

France agrees that the status quo shall be maintained and that the Sultan's sovereignty shall be unimpaired. France cherishes hopes that the terms of the Anglo-French-Spanish-Italian agreement as to Moroeco may be largely maintained, but this is not the German view. In a word, France is determined at all costs

Germany's consent to negotiate directly with France may be interpreted as a willingness to abate her provocative attitude and at least to postpone a war crisis. The French Government hopes that England will not oppose a settlement upon any terms possible.

The French reply to the other German demands is not known vet, but there is the highest authority for believing that Premier Rouvier will meet the German Emperor's wishes in the most conciliatory spirit possible If the Emperor secretly desires war he of course, will have it but France will bear much in the way of provocation before she will be driven into retaliation.

A despatch to the Temps from Metz confirms the reports of recent extraordinary military preparations. Frontier inspections have been particularly frequent on both sides during the past three weeks The German soldiers have been refused their usual leave to work on farms. There has been a certain slackening of the tension, but it is rather a moment of waiting. COLOGNE. June 19. The Cologne Gazette says to-day that Germany, while upholding the integrity of Morocco, Jelieves in the necessity of the various Powers each guarding its own special interests in Morocco. thereby insuring peace and order, Germany acknowledges France's special rights. the details of which can be set forth at the proposed conference.

The opinion prevails, says the Gazette that the friendly spirit in which the subject of the conference was discussed by Prince von Radolin, the German Ambassador to France, and Premier Rouvier warrants the belief that a complete understanding will be reached.

AGAIN DEMAND WEST STREET. Bridge Company Says Congress Has Given

It Its Choice of a Public Highway. The New York and New Jersey Bridge Company, which obtained authority from Congress to build a bridge across the North River, is renewing its efforts to obtain, under the description of a bridge approach. the right to build an elevated railroad structure over West street, from Fifty ninth street, where the bridge will enter the city, to the Battery. About three years ago, when a bill was passed by the Legislature approving of the plan, the measure was vetoed by Gov. Odell after an agitation against the "West street grab," as it was

Now the company has applied to the Sinking Fund Commission for its approval of the West street approach. It is contended that the bridge and its ap-proaches are a public highway of the United States, that the Sinking Fund Commission derives its power to act solely from the measure passed by Congress, and not by authority of the State, and that such power of the commission is limited solely to the approval of the approaches and their

Corporation Counsel Delany has advised the commission that the company's plan is not an approach at all, but an elevated is not an approach at all, but an elevated railroad five miles long, which it would be quite possible to operate without building the bridge. Mr. Delany is also of the opinion that the authority of the company is subject to the laws of the State. The New York act provides that the bridge must be begun before January, 1897, and finished before January, 1897. As these provisions have not been complied with, Mr. Delany says the act has become null and void, and says the act has become null and void, and before dealing further with the company the commission ought to insist on the com-pany furnishing evidence that its time to construct the bridge is still open.

William Sutphen, counsel to the company, said yesterday that the company under the act of Congress was still alive and that the higher courts had always passed favorably on the essential points of law which had been raised by the company. He intimated that the company would insist on its right under the Federal act to lay out the location of its approaches. Comptroller Grout said that the com-pany would never get the West street approach approved by the present adminis-tration. He expressed the belief that Con-gress had no power to grant I anchises to a corporation to pick out any street of the city it wanted to occupy, and that whatever rights the company may have here are subject to local assents.

NO MOVE YET FOR ARMISTICE,

BUT PRESIDENT HOPES ONE WILL BE DECLARED.

Fears Effect on Peace Move of Another Big Battle With Heavy Loss of Life Summer Resort to Be Chosen for Envoys if Washington Is Too Warm.

WASHINGTON, June 19.-The President to-day heard with much satisfaction from Count Cassini, the Russian Ambassador that the decision that the peace envoys should meet in this capital had been officially gazetted.

Count Cassini also took occasion during his call to discuss with Mr. Roosevelt the general features of the latter's efforts to bring Russia and Japan to terms. The interview, although brief, was very satisfactory in showing that the prospects of a permanent peace between the warring nations are even more encouraging now than they were at the time when the appeal of the President to the belligerents was granted

Count Cassini's interview followed shortly after the departure of Mr. Takahira, the Japanese Minister, who had spent half an hour with the President. Mr. Takahira, like the President, is going away from Washington to-morrow and desired to have a talk regarding the situation. Mr. Takahira will leave here to-morrow morning for Boston, and it is understood that he will make a trip to summer resorts on Cape Ann with a view to selecting a suitable place to which the peace plenipotentiaries may go if they find the weather in Washington too hot for comfort while they are deliber

This lends a little color to the opinion expressed in some quarters that when all the other preliminary details have been adjusted an effort will be made to fix a date for the initial meeting of the joint commission several weeks earlier than has been suggested.

At present, however, the disposition here is to believe that at least two months will elapse before the plenipotentiaries can get together.

There is undeniably one little cloud on the horizon, due to the fact that a renewal of hostilities appears to be imminent between the forces of Field Marshal Oyama and Gen. Linievitch. The fear is expressed that the success which has attended Mr. Roosevelt's efforts for peace would be dissipated immediately following the receipt of news at St. Petersburg that there had been another bloody engagement. But while the President has managed to bring both belligerents to the point of agreeing to adjust their differences through diplomacy, his hands are tied as to the mere military phases of the situation, and he cannot be expected to suggest a course of action that may mean the loss of a military advantage to either belligerent

The Japanese position with reference to an armistice is that the suggestion must come from Russia, but the Russians, it is said, are inclined to the view that the agreement to discuss peace terms itself supposes a suspension of hostilities. While no move has yet been made, there is a hopeful feeling here that some understanding that will prevent another big battle will be reached prior to the actual assem bling of the peace plenipotentiaries.

It is realized at the White House that the greatest care must be taken in selecting the peace envoys, and the gospel of "slow and sure" is now being preached by those who are in close touch with the President For the Washington Government to attempt to force any issue would be to invite disaster in a situation so delicate.

The chance for failure is believed to lie mainly in the fact, now openly admitted, that the Russian answer to the President's joint note does not in terms pledge that Government to make peace through the commissioners which it will send to Wash-These commis ington. ever, he fully empowered to sign a treaty if satisfactory terms are procurable, and in securing that concession the President and those who are heartily in accord with this supreme effort of his public career hold that half the battle has been won.

COSSACKS SLAUGHTER WOUNDED. Accused of Charging on a Field Hospital Ignoring Red Cross Flag.

Special Cable Despatch to THE SUN. LONDON, June 20. The Tokio correspondent of the Telegraph says he has received from a correspondent in Manchuria a statement that Cossacks, during an engagement on May 10, attacked a field hospital near Taipoushan. They first fired volleys at close quarters and then charged with swords, despite the fact that the surgeons and medical corps, 300 in number, prominently displayed the red cross. The Cossacks dashed among them and in some instances forced their way into the Japanese quarters, all the time slashing right and left. Many noncombatants were killed and wounded. Some of the Russians dismounted and thrust their bayonets down the throats of Japanese. Some of the Japanese were nearly decapitated, and bodies were disemboweled. The scene was like a slaughterhouse.

Then the Cossacks burned the medical supplies, ambulance wagons and stretchers. destroying instruments, and plundered the property of officers and men. It was wholesale loot and murder. Finally the Cossacks made twenty surgeons prisoners.

As they retreated north they set fire to all the Chinese houses on the w ay. They met a force of Japanese infantry and were compelled to leave their prisoners behind.

portant news of operations in Manchuria since Sunday's report of the defeat of the Russian cavalry. A despatch from Gen. Linievitch refers to the Japanese advancing on June 15 in the direction of Kongchen and Munsan It is believed here that this reveals the position of Gen. Hasewaga's army, which
